CASE IS TAKEN FROM THE JURY

Sudden Termination of Automobile Suit Owing to Outsiders Talking in Presence of Jurymen

The suit of the Portsmouth Motor Mart against Arthur O'Mahoney of Lawrence, Mass., which commenced in the superior court on Monday, was taken from the jury shortly before the noon recess today. The evidence was all in with the exception of that of two witnesses when County Solicitor Guy (H) and Attorney Albert R. Hatch, counsel for the Portsmouth Motor Mart, learned that the merits of the case were discussed on Monday afternoon by a professional man and a reporter of a local paper, in the presence of a member of the jury sitting on the case. This fact was stated to Judge Pike and he promptly dismissed the jury. The case it is understood will be tried by a new jury, but probably not at this session of the court. The afternoon session of court was devoted to hearing divorce cases.

NO MONEY FOR THE WORK

Payroll for Street Department Held Up on Account of Porter Street Sewer.

The payroll of the street division of the public works department was held up today and the workmen on the Porter street sewer will get no money until another appropriation is made by the city council. The original plan was to construct this sewer to State street at a cost of $1200, which the council provided for to cover the work. The street department found after considerable trouble and work that the State street sewer would not take the drainage properly and in consequence the street department was obliged to build a new sewer through Fleet street to the city and Parrott avenue, using up the $1200 intended for the other plan. The street department now finds that the construction of the sewer under the new plan will cost approximately $3000 with no money at hand to carry it along owing to the delay of the city council. The workmen, however, are still on the job and it is thought that they will continue until the city fathers provide the necessary finances to pay them. City Treasurer John C. Balchdor today made it known that he was broke and that it was up to the public works and the city council to get busy.

City Government Reform.

The National Municipal League has a committee on plan of political organization which has not yet completed its work, but which recently reported to the league the results of some of its investigations. The committee is convinced that it is useless to look to the so-called "high brow" element for reform in municipal matters, as the number in that class is too limited, and that for real results we must get down to the dollar mark and the appeal to self-interest.

And what the committee means by this is not so bad as it sounds. It does not mean that offices must be bought and sold and that the politics of a city must be run on the low plane of dollars and cents, but that the people must be taught to understand that good and clean government means the advancement of their personal and property interests and is therefore worth striving for on the basis of self-interest as well as from what may be called the "high brow" viewpoint.

But it is fair to presume that this is pretty well understood already. The average citizen of any city desires good government, knowing full well that this means the greatest possible good to himself, his family and his business, but he finds himself about as helpless in his endeavors to bring about the conditions he desires as are the "high brows." As in their case, his number is too limited, judging by the results, and the dollar mark in its baser sense continues to dominate.

The committee says "too much stress is laid upon patriotism, civic pride and the like, and too little upon what the continuance of poor government or the institution of good government means to the purse and person of the individual citizen." But what do patriotism and civic pride mean in the case of a city if not the management of its affairs in the best possible manner, with satisfaction alike to the "high brows" and those whose thoughts are chiefly on the material things of life?

Good government is a good investment, but it is something more. And one reason why it is so rare in American cities is the fact that the dollar mark is too prominent, that there are too many working for that which will benefit them regardless of the rest of the community, and the result is a maelstrom of selfish interests which commonly takes on the name of corruption. The reform of city government is a big undertaking. In the work there is room for the ideal and the practical, the "high brow" and the dollar mark, neither of which alone will ever be able to accomplish the task.

A Massachusetts church calls on President Wilson to attempt to bring peace to the warring nations at Christmas time, but the president, his advisers and the people of this country generally know that the time for this step has not arrived and that a plea for "common sense, civilization, humanity and the Christmas spirit" would be a waste of time and effort. The war must be fought out, and when the proper time comes President Wilson will be found ready to do his duty.

The American Meat Packers' Association protests to the interstate commerce commission against an increase in freight rates on meats and meat products, "on behalf of the livestock and meat dealers throughout the United States." But why not protest on behalf of meat consumers, who will have to pay the bills if the increase already granted is not suspended? No one need worry about a cent of the increase coming out of the pockets of the packers.

The department of agriculture predicts that as a result of the foreign war there will be a greater acreage of wheat next year and this in other countries than has ever been known in the history of the world. And there will be a brisk market for every bushel grown. When plowshares are beaten into swords there is always a lively demand for the products of the plowshares that are left.

The department of agriculture flatly denies the idle rumor that there has been an intentional spread of the foot and mouth disease among cattle. Were it not for the fact that there are thousands of thoughtless people who swallow whole every wild rumor that floats through the air the denial of this nonsensical report would have been wholly unnecessary.

The government finds that it has no warrant for taking over the Colorado coal fields and operating them, and the trouble will have to be adjusted in some other way. And the first proper step is that proposed by the governor-elect of the state, which is to establish and maintain law and order at any cost.

The British are complaining that their football players are not so ready to enlist as they ought to be, but in the midst of the uproar that the newspapers are making over the matter the players are exercising to a marked degree that self-control which the game is supposed to teach.

Pink oysters have been found in Long Island Sound off Oyster Bay. Perhaps the bivalves are blushing at the results of the recent election.

CASUALTY LIST OF MINES

During Past Year 3,651 Men Were Killed.

Washington, Dec. 1.—That peaceful industry has its horrors as well as war is shown in the casualty list of American mines and quarries for 1913, issued today by the United States Bureau of Mines. This list gives 3,651 men killed in the year. The number of men injured was not tabulated, but it is estimated that it reached 100,000.

Altogether in the coal mines, metal mines and quarries 1,047,910 men were employed, and the death rate for each 1,000 men engaged was 3.49, or nearly three and one-half men.

Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the Bureau of Mines, comes forward with the statement that, taking the hazards of the industry into consideration, this list of death and injury is excessive and unnecessary, and a discredit to the industry and the country.

Commenting on the deaths in the mines, Dr. Holmes said: "We stand at the slaughter in Europe as we really aim to do is to aid in saving the lives of at least two men in every 1,000, of the three and one-half men per 1,000 now killed in our mining operations. In an industrial army of over a million men working underground, that will mean a yearly saving of more than 2,000 lives; and in the combined mining and mineral industries, employing two and one-half million men, I hope we can aid in preventing 30,000 to 40,000 accidents each year."

"It must not be forgotten that mining is and always will be a hazardous industry and that each year it will demand as its tribute to modern civilization a certain death toll. We cannot avoid the inevitable, but we can avoid the unnecessary; and that would mean our year the lives of at least two thousand miners spared to the Nation's wage earners and to their wives and families; and a reduction to an extent of 30,000 to 40,000 in non-fatal accidents in the mining and metallurgical industries of the country. Surely this is something worth striving for."

PEOPLES' OPINION

To the Editor of The Herald:—

After reading your letter in last evening's paper, of a life-long resident, in behalf of the sailors who participated in the recent fire, I also bring an eye witness, wish to say a few words in behalf of a few of the U. S. S. Paducah volunteers, who at their criticize the seeming shortcomings of any other agency.

"It is not to the credit of the United States that the very European countries embroiled in the greatest conflict of the ages kill in their mining industries but one-half or even one-third of the number of men we kill. I refer to the number killed for every 1,000 employed, which is a fair basis for comparison. According to the latest foreign statistics, Belgium killed one man in every 1,000; Great Britain and France one and one-half men; and Germany two and one-half men; as compared with the American death rate of three and one-half."

"With such a gruesome record as has the United States in its mining industry, it is high time something more drastic is done to bring this excessive loss of life down to a basis that will be more favorably comparable with other countries. It can be done; it should be done; and I hope that the American people will see that it is done."

"Before the Federal Government began its attempt to aid in reducing the mortality of the mines, the death rate was steadily increasing; and although every year our coal mines grow deeper and more hazardous, as with increasing depth the explosive gases increase, this increase in fatalities has fortunately been stopped and the rate is now being slightly reduced. But this is only a beginning of what I hope will soon be a much greater improvement. What we really aim to do is to aid in saving the lives of at least two men in every 1,000, of the three and one-half men per 1,000 now killed in our mining operations. In an industrial army of over a million men working underground, that will mean a yearly saving of more than 2,000 lives; and in the combined mining and mineral industries, employing two and one-half million men, I hope we can aid in preventing 30,000 to 40,000 accidents each year."

"It must not be forgotten that mining is and always will be a hazardous industry and that each year it will demand as its tribute to modern civilization a certain death toll. We cannot avoid the inevitable, but we can avoid the unnecessary; and that would mean our year the lives of at least two thousand miners spared to the Nation's wage earners and to their wives and families; and a reduction to an extent of 30,000 to 40,000 in non-fatal accidents in the mining and metallurgical industries of the country. Surely this is something worth striving for."

TIMES ARE GETTING BETTER

Each day you see items in the newspapers telling of orders from abroad, or of mills starting up. Each day the debt we owe to Europe is diminishing and Europe's demand for our goods grows greater. The seas are open—trade is expanding. Now is the time to go after business—not tomorrow, but NOW.

We don't have to go to foreign shores to seek it. There's plenty of trade to be had right here at our own door steps. Now is the time to be aggressive.

CURRENT OPINION

Americans Will Be the Leaders of Tomorrow.

This war of nations makes the United States all important. When peace comes, as come it must, if only through international exhaustion, it will not be arranged by their colonels sitting around a drum. Instead there must be world conference, with the president of the United States in the chair.

To that conference England will, of course, come blentling, but when France has lost the eight billions loaned to Russia, when the czar's government is bankrupt, when English credit is desperately shaken and German industries are wrecked, the United States can push forward unburdened.

Americans will be the leaders of tomorrow. For Europe must now breed from the men of the last reserve.—By George Bernard Shaw, Publicist and Playwright.

Kate Michaud, Star Sullivan Case Witness, Near Death by Poison.

Houlton, Me., Nov. 30.—A decision on the motion of counsel for Dr. Lionel E. Dudley and Miss Alice Peltier of Presque Isle that their trial for the alleged murder of Miss Mildred Sullivan of Houlton be held in Penobscot or some county other than Aroostook, will be given by Associate Justice George F. Haley at the opening of the supreme court tomorrow morning. He listened to arguments for and against the motion for a change of venue this morning.

R. W. Shaw, counsel for the prisoners, arguing in favor of his motion claimed it would be impossible to secure an unprejudiced jury. He said that on account of the Northern Maine fair being held at the time of the girl's disappearance from Presque Isle on September 4, the day of her death, the case was followed more closely than it otherwise would have been and is well remembered.

He also argued that on account of the extensive newspaper reports and large headlines, many people had read about the case and the prominence of the family of Miss Sullivan, whose mother is a descendant of Joshua Carpenter, an early settler, had attracted widespread attention to it.

Attorney Bernard Archibald, opposed the motion. He said he considered it best to have the trial held in the county where the respondents are well known and where the crime was committed, and believed justice would be best served in trying the case here at an earlier date, or on Thursday, the time set. He claimed that public sentiment is just as strong in other parts of the state as in this county.

LUCIUS TUTTLE ONCE HEAD OF B. AND M. DEAD

Succumbs to Angina Pectoris at Home in Brookline, Mass.

Brookline, Mass., Nov. 30.—Lucius Tuttle, former president of the Boston and Maine railroad, died tonight at his home. Death was due to angina pectoris.

Mr. Tuttle's health had been impaired since an operation four years ago, in which one leg was amputated. He had been able to get around fairly well, notwithstanding this handicap, however, until a week ago when the illness set in which resulted in his death late tonight.

Of the 68 years of Mr. Tuttle's life, 45 were spent railroad. For seven years he was president of the Boston and Maine railroad and under his administration it grew from the original line of that name with one or two branches, to an important system covering a large area. When Mr. Tuttle retired from the presidency of the road four years ago, nearly every organization of employees of the road took official notice of the fact in resolutions regretting the loss of a friend.

Born in Hartford, Conn., March 11, 1846, Lucius Tuttle came of old Puritan stock. His graduation from the Hartford high school at the age of 19 was followed immediately by work, young Tuttle becoming clerk to a judge of probate. It seemed that his bent lay in the law, but a political turn threw him out of his position and he secured work with the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill, R. R. He ascended the rungs of a ladder that led to fame in railroad circles. He became passenger agent for the Eastern railroad and during five years under his control of this department, the affairs of the road prospered, so well that the company resumed dividends after a long pause.

Mr. Tuttle's next activities were with the Boston and Lowell railroad to which he went in 1884 as passenger agent. In 1886 he received promotion in general passenger traffic management of the Canadian Pacific railway, with headquarters in Montreal and in 1889 he was made commissioner of the Trunk Line Association.

This important position he held two years, until called to the New York New Haven and Hartford railroad to become its general manager. He was made vice president of the New Haven two years later, at an annual salary of $15,000. In 25 years of service up to this time Mr. Tuttle had risen from ticket agent to high executive place. It was in 1895 that Mr. Tuttle became president of the Boston and Maine, after a unanimous election by the stockholders. Nine years of prosperity for this road under his charge was followed by his election as president, also of the Maine Central railroad, putting Mr. Tuttle practically in control of the railroad situation in northeastern New England.

Meanwhile the Boston and Maine had acquired several connecting lines the addition of one which, the Fishkill, gave the road control of the Hoosac Tunnel. It was only after a long campaign that Mr. Tuttle prevailed on the Massachusetts legislature to allow the Boston and Maine to acquire the stock of this road.

Mr. Tuttle's retirement in September 1910 was due to his wish to obtain a rest from official cares, he announced. A year later, friends learned unexpectedly that he had been under the surgeon's knife for a gangrened infection which cost him a leg. Mr. Tuttle's wife died the same year.

Use "Gets-It," Corns Shriveled, Vanish!

It's the New Way, and You'll Forget You Ever Had Corns

"2 drops put on in 2 seconds, corns shriveled, comes clean off!" That's the marvelous story of "GETS-IT," the new-plan corn cure. Nothing can be simpler for the cure of corns—and it never fails. That's why millions of people are using "GETS-IT" today and throwing away their fussy plasters, sticky tape, toe-calling salves, and "wrapping outfits" that make a bundle around the toe and choke it into pain by pressing either on or around the corn. There is nothing to stick to your stocking, nothing to cause inflammation or rawness, nothing to press on or around the corn. You apply it in 2 seconds. No more knives, razors, scissors or files, with their blood-poison dangers. Try "GETS-IT" for that corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Portsmouth Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Portsmouth given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which proved so beneficial years ago with the kidneys can naturally be supposed to do the same work in similar cases. Read this:

George Ryers, 172 Gates street, Portsmouth, says: "My kidneys became disordered some years ago and I suffered from pain and lameness in my back. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and at night I was obliged to get up several times, but was unable to find relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Philbrick's Drug Store. They brought the most satisfactory results. After I had finished two boxes, the trouble had left."

Price 50 cents at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Ryers had. Foster-McMurray Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

ENGLISH AND GERMAN SHIPS IN SOUTH ATLANTIC

Interfer With Commercial Wireless and Jam Messages- Battle May be Fought off South America

New York, Nov. 30.—At least 12 British warships are now patrolling the Atlantic between New York and the Panama canal, sweeping the seas with their wireless and keeping close check on all forms of shipping, according to wireless operators on the steamship Agon, that arrived here today from Cristobal.

The wireless activity of these war vessels, the operators said, is causing great inconvenience to American vessels, as the high-powered waves of the men-of-war are heard continually in utter disregard of commercial business.

"These warships," the Agon's operators said, "pay no attention to the rules governing wireless operations. With their high-power apparatus they cut into the middle of a message and absolutely disregard all requests to keep out. We have no means of identifying the ships, as they use code exclusively. Our log book is full of entries telling of the British jamming us. We counted 12 different warships that jammed our wireless on the way up."

The Agon brought from the canal some 22 cable passengers, among whom were 10 members of the congressional committee on appropriations who have been making an official inspection of the great waterway. The ship left New York Nov. 7.

The Agon had no average passengers, a party of 24 United States soldiers, who were brought to the United States to serve various terms for violation of military regulations.

Germany's Squadron Now in the Atlantic.

Buenos Ayres, Nov. 30.—Dispatches received here from Montevideo insist there is good reason to believe that the German squadron which has been operating in the Pacific ocean, is at present in the South Atlantic. Neither the French nor the British legation here has any information to confirm these reports. Nevertheless, private dispatches give them credence. It is related among other things, that several German steamers are preparing to leave Montevideo to provision the German warships.

Reports that the German Pacific squadron had succeeded in making its way to the Atlantic have been current for two days. Under date of Nov. 28, Montevideo reported that the German squadron had been sighted 600 miles north of Punta Pillar, Brazil.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Nov. 30.—The recent reports that the German fleet is now in the South Atlantic appear to have been confirmed here today. It is also rumored that a powerful British fleet is nearby.

Interruption of British shipping and the outfitting of German merchant ships with supplies, were accepted here as confirmatory of reports of the approach of the German fleet, which is now believed to be off the mouth of the river Plata.

The German steamer Patagonia is being loaded here with provisions, the Sierra Cordoba with coal and the Sierra Cordoba with coal and the Sierra Cordoba with coal.

Sailings of British steamers from Montevideo and the Brazilian port of Santos has been suspended.

Marine records show that the Sierra Cordoba was at Montevideo on Nov. 22. The Sierra reached that port on Sept. 8, since which time there has been no report from her. The latest record of the Patagonia is her arrival on Oct. 22 at Tenerife, Canary Islands.

THE WENTWORTH HOME

On Sunday afternoon the in-dwellers of the Mark H. Wentworth Home were favored with a delightful service conducted by Rev. L. H. Thayer, D. D., of the North Congregational church. The church quartet, Messrs. Ernest L. Billbrack, bass, John W. Mitchell, tenor, Misses Ethel M. Beavey soprano, and Eloise Whittier alto, kindly lent their efficient aid, assisted by the organist, Mr. Arthur M. Donahue, at the piano. These Sunday services are very pleasurable and acceptable to those who are unable to go out to their own churches, and to some visitors who are usually in attendance.

AWFUL DAYS ON DUTCH FRONTIER

"I don't fully realize what sort of crime one must commit to deserve hell itself, but if one has gone through the part of the war which has been raging on the Dutch frontier he will think twice before committing the misdeed punishable thereby.

This is hell, or else it is a fine imitation of it. That's all I can say after having lived in the midst of this pandemonium for a week or so. After about 350,000 Belgian people all sorts and conditions of men have crossed our frontier, utterly destitute some of them; bereft of their homes and hearths, crying over their killed, or worse still, missing brothers, or husbands or children; men who are in the dark about the fate of their children or woman folk, soldiers who threw away their arms and uniform in frantic panic and who donned a muffi now of the most incongruous garb. People accustomed to the assistance of well-ganged themselves. The workhouse faces of these miserable stragglers who have lined every road from Belgium into Holland were a sight never to be forgotten.

Holland had been declared by its own government to be in a state of war wholly, and in state of siege partially, which means an almost discretionary power of military and central officials and a suspension of the ordinary routine of administration. Of course this brings about a general stagnation of traffic. Railway systems usually running twenty or thirty services daily have reduced their number of trains to six or ten. Express trains are unheard of and since the heaviest are removed and the lights on the rivers and sea arms are extinguished, even inland shipping is impossible after dark.

Government supplies which would be carried in a couple of hours in ordinary times take as many days now. And as government is our only flour provider at present, in various districts the scarcity of bread is keenly felt.

Add to this the influx of over a quarter of a million of hungry mouths invading in nightfall a sparsely populated district as the southern part of Dutch Flanders is, where there are only two old "centers" of over 2,000 inhabitants, and even the outleisure see the result. Acute want of nearly every necessity of life has been felt. Sleeping accommodations, food, medical assistance, even the most modest shelter could not be had in a proportion approaching the demand half way.

It does not seem such a heavy order to accommodate a quarter of a million people for some days; but brought up to the proportion it would mean for Greater New York to house and feed fifty millions. And perhaps even that figure would not come up to the mark, certainly not over-shoot it.

Pigsties hastily cleared from their usual habitations, covered by new straw were welcomed as a shelter by men and women who no longer than a fortnight ago would have scorned a sleeping room in the modest farmhouse adjoining them.

I visited myself the 15x65 foot room under the bare straw thatched roof, where the burgomaster of Breendonck, near Ghent, Count de Blarngheijn a nobleman of endless means and lineage, spent the night. I am quite sure that the rawest farmhand would sniff at it and prefer to resign before sleeping there.

At Bergen on Zoom, where the high road from Antwerp goes by, and where during the day and night of the Antwerp bombardment between two and three hundreds of thousands of people trucked by, where in a town of some 10,000 souls, 70,000 foreigners are stopping and have to be cared for, the sights were horrible.

I visited the temporary hospitals there, three of them at least. One babies left in sheer panic at the road or entrained by the parents to the care of friends who lost the poor mites during a halt in their flight, or perhaps were abandoned as an incubator.

A woman gave birth to a baby in the scrubby lining the road. She was found there dying four days later, without being able to give her name or utter a syllable. But the baby lives and will thrive. Nameless were it not for a Dutch "non com" who adopted her and had her baptized "Wilhelmina van der Woude" (of the forest).

And such sad cases of children born in the night of horror, of children without a name are no exception. In this one hospital there were ten of them. How many there are among fugitives who themselves longing for help took on themselves the care of the straggling child which they meted up, the child of some unknown com-patriot.

To be among these people, to hear their tales of woe and suffering, to see their emaciated, haggard faces, to feel the agony they live in, worst of all to see the nervous convulsions of their faces and bodies. And the sudden fright that overcame them at the hearing of any sudden unusual sound, such as the upsetting of a chair, the loud honking of a motor car!

And now the most difficult problem of all. Holland in its own interest, in view of its own unemployment, cannot keep these people here. As wage-earners they are not wanted at all. The labor market is demoralized enough already. And charity beginning at home forbids to give when the rightful demand is still unfulfilled.

Almost nobody has asked a fugitive to pay for anything. Almost all of what has been done has been a service of love, and the question of who will foot the bill ultimately has never been raised. But it is obvious, and what it is possible to give credit—there had been even question of such a thing, which there has not—you cannot give bread and meat if you don't have it yourself.

The Dutch government and at its command the local authorities, do their utmost to induce the Belgians to leave. A conference held at Antwerp between the Dutch, German and Belgian authorities resulted in a proclamation, the gist of which will have been cabled to you probably. But the fugitives, although they doubt not the statement of their own countrymen, nor the good faith of the Dutch, seem to have misgivings about the real intentions of the third party! And upon the attitude of the latter, everything, their safety, their lives, depends. They almost fear that they will walk into a trap and that their return to Antwerp is only meant as an offset to prevent an attack of the addies in case of a German reverse.

The Belgio-German publication that the Antwerp fugitives might return seatless was therefore hailed with delight by a number of well-meaning Dutch and not less by the fugitives themselves. But the actual text of the proclamation in the effect that this invitation applied in the first place to officials, people of independent means and regular wage earners, was a damper upon this satisfaction. For this means that the officials may work for the German authorities, that the wage-earners can be perfectly well employed in things going and else where to keep things going, and that the well-to-do may come to pay their share in the various war indemnities.

At Antwerp, it means that the ragged, the economical non-valuers, the vagabonds, the penniless, may stay here at Holland's charge. The majority of the first classes refuse to return. They may here to await the onset of events and to escape the under mercies shown to the populations of Louvain and Alindne or the fate of being taken as hostages or included in all sorts of fines.

The poor among them simply don't return and wait. How would they find a living if they get back?

PEG O' MY HEART

Now in its fourth month with no indication of an end to its popular run at the Court Theatre, "Peg O' My Heart" is proving that Boston will keep a good play longer than any city other than New York. The story of the play is one that appeals to all classes of theatregoers and its brilliant wit is so genuinely appealing that the bright sales are appreciated from the top of the house to the boxes. J. Mortley Manners has made of Peg a character that is lovable, amusing and delightfully frank in her exposition of the snobbery of her aristocratic English relatives. One of Peg's lines after she has observed some of the pettiness of these relatives indicates her opinion of their manners. She says: "They'll not make a lady of me—not if I can help it." She prefers to be the simple, honest young girl her father brought her up to be and though their life had been one of poverty Peg preferred that to living in the atmosphere of sham with which she found herself surrounded. Though not knowing it, Peg has been made heir to her uncle's fortune and it was his wish that she be trained to take the station in English society her wealth would command. When an aunt to whom she is sent, tries to kill the natural spirits, simplicity and joy of living and to replace it by mouthing her upon the lines of her cousin, a typical "superior" social snob, Peg's honesty asserts itself, and she refuses to be made over. It is in the constant clashes of this honesty of purpose as well as with expression of the mockery of the so-called social requirements that keep the audience in constant laughter.

Miss Florence Martin is a charming Peg and H. Reeves Smith who proves to be the man in Peg's romance as Jerry is excellent as her confidant in rebellion. Miss Alma Tell as Ethel, the aristocratic cousin; Miss Lisle Leigh, as Mrs. Chichester, the aunt; Miss Amy Short as the maid; Mr. Lewis Broughton, the near-villain; Mr. Hassard Short, the son of Peg's aunt; Mr. Frank Burbeck, the attorney; and Mr. Peter Bassett, the butler, complete the excellent supporting company.

For dyspepsia, our national ailment, use Burdock Blood Bitters. Recommended for strengthening digestion, purifying the blood. At all drug stores, $1.00 a bottle.

"Potash and Perlmutter" one of the most successful comedy triumphs of the year, at the Portsmouth Theatre Wednesday evening.

"We can handle that 'wash-lady problem' to your entire satisfaction. Just call No. 373 and our wagon will call for this week's wash. The cost will be reasonable and the flatwork will be returned to you ironed and spotlessly clean, being washed and ironed gently and thoroughly without mixing by a sterilizing process. Just try us.

NEW HAVEN DIRECTORS CHANGE PLEAS

New York, Nov. 30.—William Rockefeller and eight other former directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad today in the Federal Court sought permission to change their pleas to the indictment charging them with criminal violation of the anti-trust law. The pleas are Robert W. Taft, Charles A. Bracken, William Skinner, James S. Ellison, Newton Barney, Frederick F. Brewster, Henry K. Muller and George F. Baker.

The petition was brought before Judge Sessions, who granted the desired permission. Substitute pleas were not offered and there was no indication of what the new pleas would be. The petition was opposed vigorously by Assistant District Attorney Swacker.

Last Monday William Rockefeller and other directors who were indicted filed pleas in abatement, under which they sought to have the indictment dismissed on the ground that it was defective, the alleged defect consisting of the fact that one of the court officials connected with drafting the indictment was a resident of New Jersey instead of New York.

BOSTON NEWSPAPER SOLD

Advertiser and Record Announce the New Owners Will Take Charge Today.

Announcement is made that today the Boston Daily Advertiser and the Boston Evening Record, published by the Advertiser Newspaper Company, will pass into the hands of new owners. The identity of the new proprietors is not given in the official notice published by the Advertiser, but it is understood that the papers will be controlled by Francis W. Bird of New York, son of Charles Sumner Bird, the Massachusetts Progressive leader, and that he will have associated with him as business manager, George D. Burton, also of New York. The Advertiser's announcement:

Time-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1914) was the following:

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pre-tuberculous stage, an increased amount of catarrh (discharge) is lost, both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a characteristic of the development of tuberculosis."

Excess feeding of tuberculous patients and the enormous amount of eggs and milk given such patients are not now considered advisable by a large number of physicians who are specializing in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis.

If tuberculosis is due to a loss of time from the system, the success of Eckman's Alternative in the treatment of this disease may be due, in part, to the fact that it contains a time salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

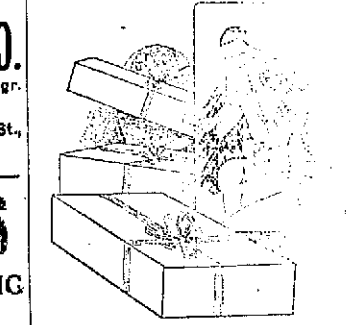

Always use urged users of Eckman's Alternative to attend strictly to matters of food.

In addition to rest and proper diet, some effective remedial agent seems to be needed, and in numerous cases of supposed recovery from tuberculosis and kindred throat and bronchial affections Eckman's Alternative has supplied this need.

It does not contain opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. Your druggist has it or will order it, or you can get it from us direct.

THIRTIETH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE GRANITE STATE DAIRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The 30th Annual Meeting of the Granite State Dairymen's Association will be held in Manchester, February 11, 1915. The meeting will be held in cooperation with the State Department of Agriculture which holds its second annual meeting on February 10th.

The St. George Hotel offers a splendid place for holding this agricultural convention. There are also suitable rooms for the milk, cream butter and cheese show, and the New Hampshire best cow show. In addition there are rooms for special meetings of the various breeders' associations which meet in connection with the Granite State Dairymen's Association. The main lecture hall on the second floor has a seating capacity for 1300 people.

It will be the largest exhibit and the largest dairymen's meeting ever held in the State of New Hampshire.

Address all inquiries in regard to exhibits, milk, cream, butter and cheese show to Fred Rasmussen, Secretary, Durham, New Hampshire.

ROCHESTER, N. H. MAN KILLED BY A TRAIN

Rochester, N. H., Nov. 30.—Jonathan P. Wentworth, aged 86, was struck and instantly killed near North Rochester last evening by the train from Wolfboro to Rochester. His body was discovered this morning about 8 o'clock by Fred Belleville, a section hand.

Mr. Wentworth, who was subject to slight mental derangements, left home yesterday morning and wandered up the railroad track leading to his former home in Milton. He was seen about 8 o'clock by men who were hunting. Last evening, when he did not return home a search was instituted, but nothing resulted until the discovery this morning.

The accident occurred near the place where a party of five young people were killed while returning from a picnic last August. Mr. Wentworth leaves a brother, Judge Stephen Wentworth, and a sister.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC FOR ARMOR PLATE

The members of the armor plate commission, after their trip of inspection to the steel plants of Pennsylvania, are said to be not very enthusiastic about the armor plate plant project, and that Senator Tillman, who in the beginning was inclined to favor it, is now of the opinion that it is a subject that will require much investigation. The members of the commission have not made up their minds as to the fundamentals of their report, and consequently, did not care to express any opinion as to the recommendations they will make. The commission is composed of Senator Benjamin R. Tillman of South Carolina, Representative Leland P. Dickett of Tennessee, and Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, U. S. A., chief of the Bureau of Ordnance.

CHURCH NEWS

There has been within the last few weeks a marked spirit at the Advent Christian church on Hanover street, that has gladdened the hearts of all earnest men and women who attend this house of worship. No excitement has prevailed such as is manifest during revival campaigns by the itinerant Evangelist, but young men and women have through the direct, forceful, earnest, and earnest preaching of the pastor of this people become convinced of the reasonableness of the Christian life and have chosen him who is able to make them wise unto salvation.

Rev. Mr. Barnes who returned to this city last March after an absence of three years, has seen his congregation nearly doubled in attendance both morning and evening, and the Church is again under his able leadership bending every energy to the up-building of Christ's church and kingdom in the North.

The musical program of the Sunday evening services is a source of gratification to all, and the answer to the query as to often raise the question, Why do so many attend church? Is, they do, as so many attend who attend these Sabbath evening services.

This Church is to be congratulated in securing the services of so able a man as Mr. Barnes, who easily maintains an enviable position among pastors of this denomination throughout New England.

The Sunday School also reaps its share of benediction results from the very large adult class whose work has become enthusiastic and helpful by the same leadership.

WAR TAX COMES TODAY

American Emergency Revenue Measures Will Then Be at Work in Every Particular.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The emergency war tax bill to raise $100,000,000 in revenue goes into full effect tomorrow. The provisions of the measure levying taxes on tobacco, beer and wine went into effect on Nov. 1 and the remaining sections became effective today. The latter includes taxes on bankers, pawnbrokers, brokers, proprietors of theatres, including motion picture houses, owners of circuses and other shows; fortune tellers, chewing gum and similar articles; commercial papers of all descriptions; steamship tickets, parlor car seats and sleeping car berths; and telephone and telegraph messages, where the charge exceeds fifteen cents. Stamps in denominations of from $6 to one cent are affixed to these articles.

MILK SHORTAGE IS FEARED

Farmers in Worcester County Complain of Scarcity of Cows Because of Foot and Mouth Disease.

Worcester, Nov. 30.—Farmers in Worcester County are complaining of the scarcity of milk cows, due to the foot and mouth disease, quarantined, and it is said that in some towns many barns are having difficulty in producing their quota of milk. Most farmers in this section stock their barns with new cows at this season of the year in place of those which threaten to go dry. Numerous consignments of milk cows for Worcester County farms are being held up in New Hampshire and Vermont.

SUBMARINES ONLY AN ADJUNCT

Fear is expressed at the Navy Department that its attitude toward submarines will be misinterpreted as a result of the refusal of the Department to join the declaration that the submarine has made battleship construction useless. The destructive power of the submarine has long been recognized by the United States navy. It is declared here, with the result that the navy is as well equipped with submarines as any nation in proportion to its strength and better equipped proportionately than several of the leading navies of the world. What is insisted on, however, is that the submarine is an adjunct, an auxiliary weapon, and should be regarded as such. The battleship strength, the blinding power of the big guns of the fleet, being regarded as the ultimate, decisive test of naval force. Only the inferiority of Germany's battleship fleet as compared with that of Great Britain compels that it be held in safety within the naval bases, according to expert opinion here. Were Germany competent to take the offensive on the sea, she would not be found depending on occasional submarine attacks for her blows at the British sea power.

A HEAVY FOG

Possibly the thickest fog of the year rolled in on Monday evening and during the evening it was so thick that street lights were hardly visible more than a block away. The fog made short work of the remainder of the remainder of the snow.

To insure this condition of healthful activity, the regular use of a pure medicinal soap is absolutely necessary.
